BACKGROUND SUMMARY

Chetana has selected Trinadh Surabhi for support. Many children who attend Chetana come from below-poverty-line families, where severe financial and social hardships often push parents to consider sending their children to work instead of school.

For over 25 years, Chetana has been working to break the cycle of child labour, guiding vulnerable children towards a better future through education and skill development.

Families struggle even to provide one full meal a day, and the Covid pandemic worsened the situation for already distressed working-class households.

Chetana continues to provide quality education, midday meals, books, uniforms, and essential support — completely free of cost, thanks to the generous contributions of philanthropists. Their continued support motivates the Trust to work with renewed energy for the development and welfare of the most needy children.

Support extended to Trinadh will ensure:

- Continued schooling without interruption
- Protection from early child labour risks
- Opportunity for academic and social growth
- Access to a safe and encouraging environment

Your contribution plays a significant role in securing her future and helping her build a dignified, empowered life.
